Governor Tate Reeves and First Lady Elee Reeves

Dear Friends,

Welcome to the Hospitality State!

Elee and I are excited to welcome you to Mississippi. We invite you to explore the historic communities, exceptional food, rich cultural heritage and pristine natural beauty that make Mississippi a great place to live, work and visit.

This Official Mississippi Tour Guide is your map to the very best of what Mississippi has to offer. Inside you will find a wealth of attractions, accommodations and unique opportunities that will ensure you have an authentic Mississippi experience as you travel throughout our beautiful state.

If your Mississippi adventure includes the great outdoors, then plenty of parks, natural waterways, wildlife reserves and recreational opportunities await. From the vast green spaces of Tishomingo State Park to the abundant wildlife of Gulf Islands National Seashore, nature enthusiasts have a large selection of locations to explore and encounter the incredible biodiversity of our state. Here, you can hike or bike along the woodland trails of the Appalachian foothills and enjoy a guided boating adventure along the mighty Mississippi River. Sport and recreational fishing are available on the many lakes and rivers found throughout the state, or you can enjoy a deep-sea fishing excursion in the Gulf of Mexico.

After a long day outdoors, immerse yourself in true Southern hospitality at one of our many restaurants, diners or roadside eateries. Mississippi cuisine is a celebration of the unique bounty our state has to offer. From fresh produce and locally sourced catfish to shrimp, crab and oysters harvested from the Gulf of Mexico, there's a world-class meal waiting for you on every corner.

While you're here, we also invite you to experience our history at one of the many museums and notable landmarks that provide insight into our rich past. At the Museum of Mississippi History and the Mississippi Civil Rights Museum in Jackson, the past comes to life through detailed exhibits and interactive experiences. We also encourage you to explore Mississippi's vast contributions to American culture at places like the Delta Blues Museum in Clarksdale and the Arts and Entertainment Experience in Meridian, both of which tell the stories of our state's legacy in the arts.

As Mississippians, we are proud to live in the "Birthplace of the Blues" and of the iconic musicians that called Mississippi home through the years. From Tupelo's own "King of Rock 'n' Roll," Elvis Presley, to Indianola's blues legend, B.B. King, you can walk in their footsteps and visit the places that helped shape their sound. Take a trip to Cleveland and see the full scope of our musical legacy at the GRAMMY Museum® Mississippi, and then wander the extensive network of markers that make up the Mississippi Blues Trail and Country Music Trail to share in the stories of the legendary Mississippians who heavily influenced all genres of music – past and present.

However you choose to spend your adventure in our great state, the experiences you have and the memories you make will last a lifetime.

Again, on behalf of all Mississippians, welcome. We're glad you're here!

Sincerely,

Governor Tate Reeves

Outdoor Adventure

THE OUTDOORS IN MISSISSIPPI ARE FULL OF THE UNEXPECTED.

No one will mistake the Delta for the mountains, but you may be surprised to see signs marking bear crossings across our vast flatlands just the same. And you wouldn't think crystal-clear, spring-fed waterfalls are common just a stone's throw from the muddy Mississippi River, but Clark Creek Natural Area has dozens of them.

TISHOMINGO STATE PARK, a captivating sliver of Appalachia in our forested northwestern corner, tops the short list of surprises you'll find exploring Mississippi.

Entering Tishomingo from the Natchez Trace Parkway is like arriving back in a time when Native Americans and early European settlers used the famed path for travel and trade. Limestone and sandstone boulders of various sizes and shapes, many draped in colorful lichens and mosses, peek through the ground cover. Rocks form a hillside rim over Bear Creek, where archaeological finds have uncovered indigenous settlements dating to 9,000 years ago.

The park's iconic SWINGING BRIDGE, pictured on this year's cover, was built by the Civilian Conservation Corps in the 1930s. This mystical bridge leads to more than three miles of wonders along the OUTCROPPINGS TRAIL, where you'll find dramatic rock walls, overhangs and waterfalls leading back to BEAR CREEK.

Heading south, you'll travel over the Black Prairie, which gets its name from the region's rich soil, and venture into the rolling hills and tall canopy of the Piney Woods. As you descend to the Coastal Plain, the air will begin to feel a little salty, and you'll start to see patches of sand along the roadsides. Then, beyond expanses of reedy marshes and the shade of centuries-old oaks, the refreshing breezes of the Gulf of Mexico await.

In Mississippi, our landscapes reward the curious. And wanderers are always welcome.

OUTDOOR HIDDEN GEMS

If you want to explore off the grid in Mississippi, look beyond the obvious and get to know the state's secret charms.

NORTH

MOON LAKE, a 2,300-acre oxbow lake 15 miles north of Clarksdale, has captivated generations of visitors. Playwright Tennessee Williams loved it so much he featured it in several of his works including "A Streetcar Named Desire." Access the lake's ample bass, crappie and catfish sportfishing by boat or the public pier, which has a covered pavilion for escaping the summer sun. Located just south of the historic riverside hamlet of Rosedale, Mississippi, GREAT RIVER ROAD STATE PARK gives visitors direct access to the banks of the Mississippi River. The park, which plans to reopen in spring 2023, also contains an oxbow lake with a boat ramp, hiking and more.

CENTRAL

In present-day Flora, ancient tree trunks and limbs deposited by flood waters and then buried by windblown loess soil hardened into stone through a process that began 36 million years ago. After thousands of years of erosion, these petrified logs now rest above ground at the MISSISSIPPI PETRIFIED FOREST. SKY LAKE near Belzoni is home to an old-growth forest of giant bald cypress trees, some more than a thousand years old. Take the boardwalk and let the interpretive signs help you identify the flora and fauna that call this oxbow home, or bring a canoe or kayak to navigate through the trees on a 2.6-mile paddling trail.

SOUTH

Twelve miles offshore from Biloxi, SHIP ISLAND is the most visited of Mississippi's four barrier islands. Travel by ferry or private boat to enjoy the Gulfside beach or tour FORT MASSACHUSETTS, which was used as a staging location for the Union's campaign against New Orleans during the Civil War in 1862. Erosion of the bluffs 200 feet above the Pearl River in Marion County has exposed layers of red clay, sand and other sediments at RED BLUFF. Although the site is on private property, the colorful formation is viewable from what's left of the existing roadbed. There are two sides of CLARK CREEK NATURAL AREA near Woodville—the wide main trail, which leads to several waterfalls, and the primitive trail, where you'll have to work a little harder for those rewards. Set aside 2.5 hours to hike both and make a loop, and keep your eyes and ears open for more than 50 waterfalls—some as high as 30 feet.

CANOEING & KAYAKING

When you share your name with one of the world's great rivers, finding your way around the water is second nature.

NORTH

River guide John Ruskey leads canoeing expeditions down the MISSISSIPPI RIVER at QUAPAW CANOE COMPANY in Clarksdale. They book day trips, overnight and multi-night adventures so you can paddle by day and camp on sandbars and islands under the stars at night. In the Appalachian foothills, sandstone bluffs overlook rocky BEAR CREEK in Tishomingo State Park. Visitors can float a six-mile trip with class I rapids in a canoe, then hike through the rock outcroppings and take a walk across its signature swinging bridge.

CENTRAL

One of the state's largest lakes, BARNETT RESERVOIR, covers 33,000 acres in the Jackson metro with some of the best recreational freshwater in the state. "The Rez," as it's known locally, is a prime spot for watersports, fishing and relaxing, with plenty of backwater to explore in canoes or kayaks. Tent and RV campers can stay right on the water at Timberlake and Goshen Springs campgrounds. The CHUNKY RIVER is part of the Pascagoula River watershed, the largest undammed river by volume in the lower 48 states. Canoe and kayak rentals are available to explore the river between Chunky and Enterprise, where it joins the Chickasawhay River. DUNN'S FALLS PARK, which has a water wheel and waterfall, makes a great stop along the way.

SOUTH

Think you can make it through the OKATOMA RIVER's class I rapids and chutes without tipping your canoe? It's harder than you might think—but once you're through, you can pull over and watch other paddlers scramble over the small ledge. Along with camaraderie you'll find several rope swings, sand beaches and even some sandstone outcroppings along the river near Seminary. Like many other coastal creeks in the Gulf region, BLACK CREEK gets its name and color from tannins in the water, making a stark contrast with its chalk-white sandbars. Primitive hiking trails follow the creek, a designated National Wild and Scenic River, and camping is allowed along the waterway. If you're looking for a backwoods float trip, Black Creek is for you.

HIKING & BIKING

Bicycling the NATCHEZ TRACE PARKWAY through Mississippi, either by section or in one 309-mile trek from Natchez to the Alabama state line, grants an experience you can't get anywhere else. Plus, there are several bicycle-only campgrounds along the way where you can rest up for the ride ahead.

NORTH

The TANGLEFOOT TRAIL, a rails-to-trails initiative, runs for 43 miles through the Mississippi Hills National Heritage Area and into the heart of communities like New Albany, Pontotoc and Houston, where you can find boutiques, antique shops and eateries. Single- and double-track trails wind for 32 miles through the NOXUBEE HILLS TRAILS, located five miles south of Ackerman. Bikers and hikers share the trails as they meander up ridges and switchbacks and along old gravel roads.

CENTRAL

Named for the Choctaw settlement that stood in present-day Jackson, the CHISHA FOKA MULTI-USE TRAIL is a paved 10 mile pathway through former Choctaw lands near Ridgeland. At the northern end, the trail leads to Reservoir Overlook, a high point with panoramic views of the Barnett Reservoir. While you're in the neighborhood, check out the BARNETT RESERVOIR BOTANICAL GARDEN TRAIL just across the lake's spillway in Brandon. At just over half a mile in length, this paved walking trail is manageable for young and old alike.

SOUTH

The LONGLEAF TRACE connects Piney Woods communities like Bassfield and Sumrall before hitting Hattiesburg. For more than two decades, bikers and hikers have used this former railroad pathway to explore the backwoods of the region. Along the PASCAGOULA HISTORIC BIKE TRAIL, you can cruise by points of interest like the LaPointe-Krebs House, the oldest structure standing in the Mississippi Valley, as well as the Round Island lighthouse. Just a couple blocks from the beach, you'll see the house where Jimmy Buffett spent his earliest days.

Natchez Trace Parkway

Strawberry Plains Audubon Center

ECOTOURISM & BIRDING

As one of the most rural states in the U.S., Mississippi is a resource-rich haven for birds of all feathers and a refuge for naturalists.

NORTH

At the STRAWBERRY PLAINS AUDUBON CENTER in Holly Springs, 15 miles of hiking trails lead visitors through native forest, wetlands and grasslands. The Strawberry Plains Hummingbird Migration and Nature Celebration, Audubon's largest outdoor festival, toasts the arrival of migrating birds every September on the weekend following Labor Day.

CENTRAL

The FLOWOOD NATURE TRAIL PARK is a serene outdoor escape located within the city of Flowood. Here you'll find 40 picturesque acres filled with native Mississippi trees and plants. A one-mile paved walking trail goes around the park's lake and lush hardwood forests and features distance markers as well as markers for native plant species.

SOUTH

Along waterways in our six southernmost counties, the MISSISSIPPI COASTAL BIRDING TRAIL will lead you to 40 sites known by local birders as historically prime birding locations to discover varieties of herons, egrets, rails, gallinules and the endangered least tern. Established in 1975 on nearly 20,000 acres near Ocean Springs, the MISSISSIPPI SANDHILL CRANE NATIONAL WILDLIFE REFUGE protects its namesake non-migratory bird and its coastal wetland and pine savannah habitats. From just a few dozen remaining birds, the crane's population has grown to more than 130 known birds today. Spend a couple of hours in the lower Pascagoula River marshes and swamps learning about the biodiversity and legends of the wild "Singing River" with ECO-TOURS OF SOUTH MISSISSIPPI in Gautier. The outfitter also organizes paddling and birding trips to Deer Island and can build a custom tour for your group.

Gulf of Mexico

FISHING

Anglers from all over dream of having the abundant freshwater and saltwater fishing habitats available in Mississippi in their portfolio. Here's where to drop a line on your next trip.

NORTH

If chasing trophy crappie is on your wishlist, then make sure GRENADA LAKE is on there, too. Several local guiding services are available to lead you to monster crappie fishing off the inlets and points in this 54-square-mile reservoir. But thankfully Grenada Lake isn't alone. Three additional reservoirs—ARKABUTLA LAKE, ENID LAKE and SARDIS LAKE, the largest in the state—are all crappie hot spots and no more than 20 miles separate each one from its nearest neighbor. With so much fishing in a small area you're almost guaranteed to have a honey hole all to yourself. PICKWICK LAKE, which borders Mississippi, Alabama and Tennessee, boasts some of the best smallmouth bass fishing in the South. Use J.P. COLEMAN STATE PARK near Luka as your berth for exploring the world-class fishery.

CENTRAL

Our state lakes are brimming with bream and its popular cousins, crappie and bass, and BARNETT RESERVOIR in the Jackson area is a popular spot to launch your boat in search of these feisty fish. Don't be surprised if you hit our generous limits before the fun runs out. Hit the deep water at EAGLE LAKE near Vicksburg to score crappie and catfish, or stay near the shoreline of this oxbow to make a run after largemouth bass and bream. Ten miles south of Greenville, the slightly smaller, 3,000-acre oxbow LAKE WASHINGTON gives Delta anglers a show at the same prized species of fish.

SOUTH

Along coastal Mississippi, the locals cruise oyster beds, man-made reefs and island passes for speckled trout, white trout and redfish. With 75 miles of Gulf-front coastline—not counting many more miles of serpentine bayous and open bays—there are ample opportunities to land an unforgettable catch. Point your boat offshore or enlist a deep-sea charter service to cast for larger, speedier fish that troll the deeper waters of the GULF OF MEXICO. Prized catches here include red snapper, mackerel, tripletail, wahoo, lemon fish (cobia) and several varieties of sharks.

HUNTING

Hunting is often a family affair in Mississippi—it's not surprising to see the sport bring together generations of kinfolk and friends. Here's how to answer the call of the wild in the Magnolia State.

Deer are plentiful throughout the state's 82 counties, but the rural Southwestern part of the state is especially known for producing monster bucks. The two most recent state records were harvested here, including a 184-inch buck in ADAMS COUNTY near Natchez and a 205-inch-er in CLAIBORNE COUNTY near Port Gibson.

The MISSISSIPPI FLYWAY, a continent-spanning bird migration route, sends thousands of mallards, teals and wood ducks straight to lakes in the Delta every fall, where hunters line up for a chance to harvest them. Turkey hunting is just as attractive, though. It's estimated that nearly a quarter-million turkeys roost in Mississippi, filling the forests in fall and spring with yelping, clucking and gobbling. If you're into bagging smaller game, Mississippi supports ample populations of rabbits, squirrels, quail and more, as well as more exotic harvests like alligator and wild hog. More than 50 state-maintained wildlife management areas offer opportunities that rival private hunting lands. The current record deer, for example, was harvested at CANEMOUNT WMA.

Find a full list of our WMAs on page 96.

CAMPING

Spending a night in the great outdoors can be as primitive or as modern as your tastes. Tent and RV camping sites are plentiful, and now even more indulgent glamping experiences are available at our state parks (read about them in the Unique Lodging feature on page 62).

NORTH

In the Appalachian foothills near Iuka, campers at J.P. COLEMAN STATE PARK can wake to the sun cresting over the hills to the east over Pickwick Lake from one of 69 RV sites and nine primitive tent sites. LAKE LOWNDES STATE PARK in Columbus is a relaxing spot for a weekend getaway or if you're looking for a remote stay near athletic events and entertainment at Mississippi State University. This park accommodates both RV and tent camping.

CENTRAL

TIMBERLAKE CAMPGROUND in Brandon sits right on the shore of the Barnett Reservoir and offers an oasis with expansive water views and endless recreational activities—all minutes from town.

SOUTH

Biloxi's MAJESTIC OAKS RV RESORT is shaded by century-old live oaks and stacked with amenities that make this more than a typical RV park—like complimentary casino shuttle service, a relaxing clubhouse and social events for guests, including Saturday cookouts. LITTLE BLACK CREEK CAMPGROUND AND PARK in Lumberton is centered on a 640-acre lake, where guests can join weekly fishing tournaments, swim and rent kayaks, canoes and jon boats. Guests can also play the park's 18-hole disc golf course.

Gaming

PEOPLE COME TO MISSISSIPPI TO EXPLORE THE CULTURE, SAMPLE THE FOOD AND EXPERIENCE THE NATURAL BEAUTY—AND SOME JUST COME TO HAVE FUN. MISSISSIPPI HAS THE MOST DEVELOPED GAMING INDUSTRY IN THE SOUTH WITH CASINOS ALONG THE MISSISSIPPI RIVER AND DOTTING THE GULF COAST.

Wherever you're going in Mississippi, you won't be far from world-class gaming opportunities, whether you're a high-roller with iron nerves or content to take some slow spins on the penny slots.

The casinos are destinations in their own right with top-notch restaurants, bars, entertainment venues and spas, often onsite. If you're looking for a resort-style experience that lets you combine gaming excitement with relaxing hours by the pool, delicious meals and primo entertainment, Mississippi is your jackpot.

Here the casinos are all close to other winning attractions. You can hear Delta blues, delve into history or lounge on the beach. Then head back to the casino for a few more games. Come on down to Mississippi's casinos and see why so many people stay and play here.

DISCOVER JXN'S ICONIC EVENTS

IN 2023

Mississippi's capital city embodies a hospitality that is uniquely southern with an embrace of diversity that is distinctly Jackson. Our vast culinary offerings, museums, and historical sites - many of which help shape the culture of the United States - are only a few reflections of the soul of Jacksonians. With hundreds of restaurants to choose from, including mom-and-pop eateries to James Beard Award-winning fine dining, more than thirty award-winning museums, visual and performing arts, literature, and history, Jackson is the place you will want to visit again and again.

And, 2023 is the perfect time to visit. Starting with the USA International Ballet Competition in June, the legacy of JXN Icon Thalia Mara, the only place in the western hemisphere where dancers assemble from all over the world every four years to year-round events celebrating the life and legacy of another JXN Icon, Medgar Wiley Evers, the drum major for Civil Rights in MS who paid the ultimate price 60 years ago on June 12, 1963.

Literary icons will convene (or reconvene) in Jackson in 2023. First, the Mississippi Book Festival in August hosts thousands of visitors and hundreds of authors, including JXN Icon, Angie Thomas. Then, the 50th Anniversary of the Phyllis Wheatley Poetry Festival originally hosted by JXN Icon, Margaret Walker, will take place on the campus of Jackson State University in November with several of the original authors attending.

Looking for the ultimate HBCU experience? Catch Coach Deion "Prime Time" Sanders and the Jackson State University Tigers for a home game at The Vet, home of JXN Icon, Walter Payton!

Mississippi's Food

FROM DELTA TAMALES TO GULF SEAFOOD AND FROM CENTURIES-OLD HERITAGE FOODWAYS TO INNOVATIVE NEW RESTAURANTS, MISSISSIPPI OFFERS SOMETHING SPECIAL FOR EVERY PALATE AND EVERY MEAL.

TAMALES

The famous simmered and steamed tamales of the Mississippi Delta are smaller and spicier than their Mexican cousins. Stock up on napkins for this unexpected Southern delicacy.

NORTH

Adjacent to the famous Blues Crossroads, ABE'S BBQ in Clarksdale offers Delta tamales and genuine pit barbecue. DILWORTH'S TAMALES in Corinth serves up both hot and mild tamales and features a drive-thru—if you think you can make it home before digging in.

CENTRAL

DOE'S EAT PLACE in Greenville began as a honky-tonk that served meals. The food, including Delta tamales, was so good that the eating outshined the drinking and dancing. TONY'S TAMALES in Ridgeland offers hot, mild, turkey and black bean tamales; they're so good that they're also served at other restaurants throughout Mississippi.

SOUTH

Natchez's FAT MAMA'S supplements its tamales with po-boys and a full Tex-Mex menu, complete with spicy "Fire and Ice" pickles and a "Knock-You-Naked" margarita. DORIS' HOT TAMALES are such a local favorite, the city of D'Iberville named the street the restaurant sits on after founder Doris Deno.

BURGERS & SLUGBURGERS

Hamburgers are one of the mainstays of American cuisine and the quintessential roadside meal. One of Mississippi's local variations, the slugburger, was born of Depression-era ingenuity, when chefs incorporated soy grits and sometimes pork to extend the beef. They originally cost a nickel—nicknamed a "slug."

NORTH

HEY JOE'S, with locations in Cleveland and Merigold, offers a range of burgers. Established shortly after the Civil War, BORROUM'S DRUG STORE is the oldest business in Corinth and the oldest drugstore in the state. It dishes up slugburgers, shakes and more at an old-fashioned soda counter. Elvis Presley used to eat at JOHNNIE'S DRIVE INN in Tupelo. Make like the "King" and order a doughburger—the local spin on the slugburger, enriched with flour in the meat.

CENTRAL

BRENT'S DRUGS in Jackson has been in same spot since 1946 and serves up the same classic Americana fare. Flora's BLUE ROOSTER offers stacked-tall burgers with sassy monikers like the jalapeno-forward "Flame Thrower" and the everything-but-the-kitchen-sink "Big Nasty." FULL STOP BURGER in Ridgeland serves up tried-and-true burgers (including an Impossible Burger), custard and more in a modern yet nostalgic setting that is as photo worthy as their tasty offerings.

SOUTH

The offerings at ED'S BURGER JOINT in Hattiesburg are billed as "the juiciest around," ranging from the classic burger to the stacked-high "Heavy Eddie" and everything in between. R HOUSE in Columbia has won the Mississippi Beef Council's Best Burger award two years in a row—come for the award-winning burgers, stay to browse the attached country store.

FROM THE WATER

Crisscrossed with rivers and with access to the Gulf, Mississippi's got plenty of fresh Gulf seafood, delectable catfish and spicy crawfish to tempt chefs and thrill diners.

NORTH

THE CROWN RESTAURANT in Indianola offers fresh catfish in creative ways—in crab-style cakes sweetened with peach salsa, tucked into a sandwich with Jezebel sauce—as well as the classics. CRAWDAD'S in Merigold offers all the fried, broiled or boiled seafood you could want, including the namesake crawdads in season. Formally known as crawfish, these small lobster-like crustaceans are native to the swampy areas of the South. They're either served boiled and whole to crack open and eat or the tail meat is extracted to dress up pastas, sauces or anything else that needs a seafood zing. TAYLOR GROCERY in Taylor has the striking slogan "Eat or We Both Starve"—with choices like fried oysters, blackened catfish and whole fried catfish, it's easy to oblige.

CENTRAL

At RUSTY'S RIVER FRONT GRILL in Vicksburg, "Rusty's House Specialty," the blackened catfish in a crawfish cream sauce, joins grouper and soft-shell crab on a tempting menu. Trout, flounder and redfish crown the extensive and tempting menu at THE MAYFLOWER CAFÉ in Jackson, a local favorite since 1935. COCK OF THE WALK, with locations in Ridgeland and Pocahontas, presents riverboat-themed casual dining with a menu centered on award-winning fried catfish.

SOUTH

The THORNY OYSTER in Bay St. Louis offers a creative and modern take on fresh local fare. Here you'll find seafood dishes as beautiful as they are delicious and unique. MARY MAHONEY'S in Biloxi, a local favorite for decades, is located in a historic house with a grand live oak shading the courtyard. Crab imperial, stuffed flounder and many more glamorous seafood dishes anchor the menu. Biloxi's TARANTO'S CRAWFISH will give you heaps of juicy red crawfish when in season; weekly seafood specials keep diners coming back. Reservations are required at the JOURDAN RIVER STEAMER in Kiln—it's worth the planning to sample deluxe nautically themed platters, optionally "kadobstered" by adding crabmeat and shrimp over seafood stuffing.

STEAKHOUSES

NORTH

THE GOLDEN HORN, a cozy rustic spot in Columbus, offers everything you want from a steakhouse, especially custom-cut steaks grilled to perfection. Starkville's upscale 44 PRIME is a perfect special occasion spot, rounding out an already sumptuous steakhouse menu with elegant seafood starters, whiskey flights and dessert cocktails.

CENTRAL

TICO'S STEAK HOUSE in Ridgeland adds shish-kabob, rock lobster, and veal and lamb chops to its roster of steak offerings, all served in a cozy atmosphere that has charmed local diners since 1989. H.D. GIBBES & SONS in Learned started as a general store; several generations of Gibbeses later, it still sells essentials but now with top-notch steak and seafood served in the back—complete with live music. TWO RIVERS in Canton was dubbed "Best Steak in Mississippi" by the state cattlemen's association—you can judge the specialty fried oysters and green tomatoes Napoleon for yourself.

SOUTH

Ocean Springs' CHARRED offers oysters raw or cooked in one of five ways—a combo is available for the indecisive—along with a full range of steak options and more seafood treats from the Gulf. The menu of options for an old-fashioned cocktail at RACK HOUSE in Gulfport takes up a full page—just one of many delights this whiskey and steak palace offers.

INTERNATIONAL FLAVORS

The Southern cuisine for which Mississippi is famous emerged when African, European and Native American ingredients and techniques mixed. In recent generations, immigrants from all over the world have come to Mississippi bringing the flavors of their homelands to join local food traditions and making the state melting pot of culture and delectable worldly flavors.

NORTH

Southaven's NARU offers a wide range of Japanese fare, with a wide sampling of entrees, standard and novelty sushi rolls, hibachi and bento boxes. RESTHAVEN in Clarksdale looks like a traditional country café, but diners are in for a treat. In addition to the classics, the menu offers Lebanese dishes like kibbie, stuffed grape leaves and baklava.

CENTRAL

LILLO'S in Leland brings Italian cooking to the Delta with a menu full of favorites like manicotti, eggplant parmesan and lasagna, rounded out with pizza and seafood options. SAKURA BANA, a huge local favorite in Jackson, offers sushi and sashimi, Japanese noodles, rolls and entrees. KEBAB & CURRY, an Indian-Pakistani spot in Madison, offers a wide range of curry, kebab and tandoori meals.

SOUTH

LE BAKERY, a French-Vietnamese bakery in Biloxi, serves pastries, breads and banh mi, a southeast Asian take on the po-boy. Top it off with a bubble tea. JUTAMUS THAI restaurant in Hattiesburg has received accolades for its authentic Eastern dishes. House-made chicken salad, goat cheese torte and lovingly prepared soups du jour are only a few of the reasons Ocean Springs diners keep returning to the French-inspired MAISON DE LU.

BRUNCH

NORTH

BIG BAD BREAKFAST in Oxford lives up to its name: start the day off strong with banana-pecan coffee cake or oyster pot pie. JOBO'S, pronounced Yo-bos, inside Hotel Tupelo, offers brunch Saturday and Sunday with menu highlights including a dolled-up avocado toast with lemon cream cheese, wilderness poutine and classic blueberry French toast.

CENTRAL

The menu at the STRAWBERRY CAFÉ in Madison has something for everyone, from the elegant eggs sardou with artichokes and hollandaise to the fill-me-up effectiveness of the "Train Wreck," with pot roast debris, grits, gravy and eggs. No-filler crab cakes, chicken and waffles, and fried green tomatoes pop out of the menu at CHAR in Jackson, where brunch is served with a side of live jazz on Sundays. The menu at Vicksburg's ANCHUCA, a historic mansion inn, changes regularly depending on how the local ingredients inspire Chef Eric Richards—look for specials alongside crowd-pleasers like filet mignon and panéed catfish.

SOUTH

Brunch at the HARBOR VIEW CAFE in Long Beach presents tough decisions, with a menu stacked with omelets, benedicts and sweet add-ons for pancakes and waffles. The big bay window of the dining room at the CARRIAGE HOUSE in Natchez frames the Stanton Hall historic house—take a tour of the house either before or after enjoying classic Southern food. The elegant and airy dining room at the CHIMNEYS in Gulfport is the perfect ambience to savor a seafood brunch—baked seafood eggplant and a variety of trout dishes command particular attention.

CHEF DRIVEN

With a wealth of local food traditions and top-notch ingredients produced by its farms, waters and culinary artisans, it's no surprise that Mississippi has incubated a number of award-winning, chef-driven restaurants securing the state a place in the national food scene.

NORTH

Hometown boy Chef Cole Ellis returned to Cleveland to open DELTA MEAT MARKET, a butcher shop, restaurant, rooftop BAR FONTAINE and boutique grocer in the Cotton House Hotel. A James Beard Foundation Semifinalist, SAINT LEO offers fine, wood-fired Italian cooking in an ultra chic setting.

CENTRAL

You can get a taste of the culinary prowess of NICK WALLACE, a recent alum of Bravo's Top Chef, at NISSAN CAFÉ in Jackson's Two Mississippi Museums. ELVIE'S in Jackson, inspired by Chef Hunter Evans' memories of visiting his grandmother in her New Orleans kitchen, sources from local farms and fisheries to create a wide array of fresh local flavors and offers a tasting menu that changes weekly. Ridgeland's CAET, the latest from Chef Derek Emerson of WALKER'S DRIVE IN, PARLOR MARKET and LOCAL 463 fame, offers an approachably upscale seafood-centric dining experience, complete with oyster bar.

SOUTH

Mississippi is packed full of good food options—and some of the very best are hidden down back roads, behind unassuming exteriors or have set up shop in gas stations.

NORTH

THE 4 CORNERS CHEVRON'S chicken on a stick in Oxford looks like a simple Chevron station, but Ole Miss fans and travelers alike have learned to savor the famed fried chicken on a stick here. Chicken in its many forms is king at DODGE'S STORE in Olive Branch, but plenty of sides and desserts fill out the menu.

CENTRAL

Pull over at the KEWANEE ONE STOP in Toomsuba to feul with catfish, country fried steak sandwiches and po-boys. FRATESI'S GROCERY & SERVICE STATION in Leland offers Southern and Italian favorites with duck gumbo, muffulettas, fried olive poboy and homemade spaghetti keeping locals and travelers fed and happy.

Culture

LITERATURE

Even the short list of acclaimed writers from Mississippi stretches as long as one of Faulkner's passages, and the list continues to grow. These literary landmarks and many others are also part of the Mississippi Writers Trail (see page 55).

NORTH

In 1930, William Faulkner bought ROWAN OAK in Oxford and began penning a run of acclaimed novels depicting Yoknapatawpha County, his fictional stand-in for Oxford. Later he sketched notes for his novel A Fable on walls at the home. Playwright Tennessee Williams was known as a colorful character. The TENNESSEE WILLIAMS HOUSE MUSEUM & WELCOME CENTER in Columbus, a restored 1875 Victorian, was Williams' childhood home.

CENTRAL

The EUDORA WELTY HOUSE, a 1925 Tudor home in Jackson's Belhaven neighborhood, is where this Pulitzer Prize winner wrote and entertained. In 2004, the home was declared a National Historical Landmark.

SOUTH

New York Times best-selling author Greg Iles calls Natchez home. Take a step inside his novels and visit sites mentioned in The Quiet Game, Turning Angel and The Devil's Punchbowl (among others) on DOWNTOWN KARLA BROWN'S GREG ILES BOOK TOUR, which has been endorsed by the author.

MUSIC MUSEUMS & SITES

The American songbook took shape amid the struggles and jubilations of its people, and those expressions gave form to the popular music of today. While you're following the roots of American music along the Mississippi Blues Trail and Country Music Trail (start on page 55), these important stops along the journey will bring the musicians' stories to life.

NORTH

The Grammy Awards® are the pinnacle of achievement for musical artists, and Mississippi has produced more winners than any other state. The GRAMMY MUSEUM® MISSISSIPPI in Cleveland enshrines that legacy with exhibits on how modern music is made and how the roots of music branch out from here. Curated by the King of the Blues himself, the collection at the B.B. KING MUSEUM AND DELTA INTERPRETIVE CENTER in Indianola tells the story of his rise to fame. A recent expansion showcases a tour bus he rode for more than 12 million miles—enough for 25 round trips to the moon. Our fascination with Elvis Presley, "The King of Rock 'n' Roll," still burns strong. Tour his humble boyhood cottage, sit in the church that inspired him to sing and view artifacts from his legendary music career at the ELVIS PRESLEY BIRTHPLACE & MUSEUM in Tupelo.

CENTRAL

If the names Morgan Freeman, Jim Henson or Oprah Winfrey mean anything to you, make a point to visit THE MAX in Meridian, which celebrates the state's incredible star power through immersive experiences. Known as the "Father of Country Music," Jimmie Rodgers learned his trade on the railroad in Meridian while writing songs that became part of country music history. See his fully restored custom Martin guitar and other artifacts from his life on the rails at the JIMMIE RODGERS MUSEUM in Meridian.

SOUTH

On a spring evening in 1940, a fire broke out during a concert at the original RHYTHM NIGHT CLUB. It quickly consumed the building, and 209 revelers perished. Built on the same site in Natchez 70 years later, THE RHYTHM NIGHT CLUB MEMORIAL MUSEUM honors those who died that night. Before Leontyne Price studied at Juilliard and broke the race barrier as the first African-American soprano to gain international acclaim, she grew up in Laurel. The LEONTYNE PRICE MUSICAL PARK pays tribute to the iconic opera singer.

LIVE MUSIC VENUES

Recorded music soundtracks our daily lives, but to really feel the full spectrum of sounds and emotions, you've gotta experience it being created right in front of you. Luckily, we do that part well in Mississippi, too. These are just a few of our unique destinations to hear some live tunes.

NORTH

Once a livery stable owned by William Faulkner's family, THE LYRIC became the first movie theater in Oxford a century ago. Located just off the town's famous square, it's now a premier place to catch live music from top touring artists in an intimate setting. At the BANKPLUS AMPHITHEATER AT SNOWDEN GROVE in Southaven you can enjoy a concert in a cozy seat or spread out with a few thousand of your friends on the spacious lawn.

CENTRAL

The BRANDON AMPHITHEATER is the place to catch a live concert after a day kayaking on the Barnett Reservoir, watching a Mississippi Braves AA baseball game or shopping at nearby outlets. There's no star too big for HAL & MAL'S stage in Jackson. But it's much more than a music venue; it's also a local-color restaurant with deep roots and a haven for blues fans who visit for the weekly Blue Monday showcase. Broadway productions and marquee musicians have taken the MSU RILEY CENTER stage at Meridian's restored 1890s Grand Opera House. Thanks to its masterful acoustic design there isn't a bad seat in the house.

SOUTH

There's no better place to hear live music than from the enviable perch at Natchez Bluff—and it's best served while sipping a cold craft beer from NATCHEZ BREWING COMPANY, located a block away. Food, music and spirits is what you'll find at GOVERNMENT STREET GROCERY in Ocean Springs. Grab a seat on the patio to find live music almost every night of the week—and sometimes during the day. Hattiesburg's historic 1929 SAENGER THEATER continues to stand the test of time with live performances in the heart of downtown.

VISUAL ART MUSEUMS

Mississippi is known throughout the world for its music, but that isn't the only art you'll find on an adventure through the Magnolia State. Our architecture and visual art reveal the complexities of Mississippi life and the natural world that inspires us.

NORTH

The GUMTREE MUSEUM OF ART in Tupelo opens its doors to a variety of visual art exhibitions and workshops. This public gallery is located in an early 20th century Beaux Arts-style building in the heart of Tupelo's business and entertainment district. Among the holdings in the UNIVERSITY OF MISSISSIPPI MUSEUM collection in Oxford are Southern folk art works, Greek and Roman antiquities, 19th century scientific instruments and American fine art.

CENTRAL

The MISSISSIPPI MUSEUM OF ART in Jackson turned heads when it landed the largest American exhibition of art and artifacts from the Palace of Versailles, but that standard of excellence also informs its 5,800-piece permanent collection. The outdoor ART GARDEN is a verdant, acre-plus oasis in the heart of downtown Jackson.

SOUTH

Step back in time in Natchez at the STRATTON CHAPEL PHOTOGRAPHY MUSEUM to view a collection of vintage photographs from the oldest city on the Mississippi River. More than 500 photographs reveal the lives of early traders, the steamboats they rode and the grand estates they built atop the bluffs. Local artists like Ricardo Moody have covered Hattiesburg with inspiring and uplifting expressions of art on the HATTIESBURG PUBLIC ART TRAIL. More than 40 vibrant murals and sculptures around town tell the city's story. Walking into Laurel's LAUREN ROGERS MUSEUM OF ART is like stepping into another culture, whether you're surveying the collection of Japanese woodblock prints or viewing European paintings dating back to the 17th century. Naturalist Walter Anderson's most enduring works are on display at the WALTER ANDERSON MUSEUM OF ART—including the famous murals of his secret sanctuary known as "The Little Room" and the adjoining OCEAN SPRINGS COMMUNITY CENTER, which he painted in the early 1950s for one dollar.

PERFORMING ARTS & THEATER

Immerse yourself in the stunning displays of artistry from our dancers and actors at theaters in every region of Mississippi.

NORTH

The BOLOGNA PERFORMANCE ARTS CENTER in Cleveland, a cultural complex featuring a 1,154-seat theater and a separate recital hall, is the home of performance arts in the Delta. Oxford's stage for theatrical productions, visiting lectures and decorated musical artists is the GERTRUDE C. FORD CENTER FOR THE PERFORMING ARTS, with a roster of 150 events annually.

Bologna Performing Arts Center

CENTRAL

Dancers from around the world convene in Jackson every four years to compete in the USA INTERNATIONAL BALLET COMPETITION, an Olympics-style trial for gold, silver and bronze medals, cash prizes—and for many, dream gigs with professional dance companies. Jackson's THALIA MARA HALL got its name from the famed ballet dancer herself, who helped secure Jackson as the home of the USA International Ballet Competition. The 2,040-seat venue in downtown Jackson hosts concerts, plays and other performance events. The MISSISSIPPI SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA performs 120 concerts around the state every year, including the popular annual Pepsi Pops July 4th concert on the Barnett Reservoir. The MSU RILEY CENTER in Meridian is a meticulously-restored 1889 opera house that hosts world-class performers inside of its gilded walls.

SOUTH

With a student roster chosen from home and abroad, the UNIVERSITY OF SOUTHERN MISSISSIPPI ORCHESTRA has performed with musical legends including Itzhak Perlman, Yo-Yo Ma and Placido Domingo.

POTTERY, CRAFTSMEN, GALLERIES

Ceramists and craftsmen have known for centuries that the best raw materials are right under their feet. "Mississippi Mud" isn't just a decadent dessert—it's also the rich, colorful clay ceramists use to create durable and decorative works of art.

NORTH

Lee and Pup McCarty fired their signature pottery glazes in an old mule barn where they also lived. MCCARTY'S POTTERY in Merigold, now run by their godsons Jamie and Stephen Smith, is the place to find their jade, cobalt blue and nutmeg crafts. In historic Mound Bayou, the Woods Brothers at PETER'S POTTERY throw clay for decoration and daily use, creating dinnerware, vases and specialty pieces depicting the nativity, local wildlife and more.

CENTRAL

The 20,000-square-foot BILL WALLER CRAFT CENTER in Ridgeland is the home of the MISSISSIPPI CRAFTSMEN'S GUILD, which features wood carvings, Choctaw baskets and other works from 400 artisans. Tucked in Flowood's Lakeland Commons lifestyle center is a hidden gem for seasoned and new art collectors alike. Browse and shop one-of-a-kind works by renowned and up-and-coming Mississippi artists at PACESETTER GALLERY.

SOUTH

The works of George E. Ohr are the centerpiece of Biloxi's OHR-O'KEEFE MUSEUM housed in a campus of four structures designed by architect Frank Gehry that rivals his genius. Peter Anderson, brother of painter Walter Anderson, established SHEARWATER POTTERY on a hill overlooking the Ocean Springs Harbor in 1928. His descendants still fire pottery in the family tradition and sell their wares in a gallery just down the oyster-shell drive.

CULTURAL MUSEUMS

You'll pick up some local color around every corner at our state's many community and cultural museums.

NORTH

For more than 15 years, the APRON MUSEUM in Luka has celebrated the artistry, fabrics and uses of aprons. Discover artifacts dating to the Civil War in the only apron museum in the country. On a site along Natchez Trace Parkway, a tavern built by a Frenchman was the beginning of French Camp. The FRENCH CAMP HISTORIC VILLAGE includes a bed and breakfast, pottery studio and restaurant housed in various cabins from the 19th century. Passenger train service ended in Cleveland in 1965, but the railbed and train station are still here. The station is now the MARTIN & SUE KING RAILROAD HERITAGE MUSEUM, where visitors can learn how the railroad shaped the town.

CENTRAL

Just outside the levee gates in Vicksburg, the CATFISH ROW MUSEUM bridges the city's other main attractions—Civil War history and blues music—to a broader narrative of the people who settled here, their ways of life and the river that sustained them. The picturesque downtown square in Canton has provided a nostalgic backdrop for Hollywood blockbusters like A Time to Kill, My Dog Skip and O Brother, Where Art Thou? Visit the CANTON MOVIE MUSEUM for a look behind the scenes.

SOUTH

The HISTORIC L&N TRAIN DEPOT in Bay St. Louis houses both the BAY ST. LOUIS MARDI GRAS MUSEUM, which features elaborate costumes, and the ALICE MOSELEY FOLK ART & ANTIQUE MUSEUM. Learn local history at the NATCHEZ MUSEUM OF AFRICAN AMERICAN CULTURE AND HISTORY, such as the story of Forks of the Road, the second-largest slave market in the South, as well as the life of author and Natchez native Richard Wright.

History

MISSISSIPPI'S ROADWAYS ARE FULL OF OPPORTUNITIES TO STOP AND SPEND SOME TIME LEARNING ABOUT THE PAST OF THIS COLORFUL STATE AND THE MANY PEOPLE WHO HAVE CALLED IT HOME.

NATIVE AMERICAN HISTORY

Before the arrival of Europeans, the Chickasaw, Choctaw and Natchez tribes, along with many smaller Native American groups flourished in the fertile land that would become the state of Mississippi. One of the most durable legacies of these peoples' pre-contact societies is the network of Indian Mound sites across the state. Explore these impressive feats of pre-modern construction and learn about the people who built them by following the MISSISSIPPI MOUND TRAIL (see page 52).

NORTH

In Tupelo, once part of the Chickasaw homelands, the CHICKASAW HERITAGE CENTER offers a center for the preservation and celebration of Chickasaw history and traditions. Recreated models of traditional structures share the grounds with a modern museum and event space, right off the Natchez Trace Parkway.

CENTRAL

Central Mississippi maintains an impressive record of the indigenous people who called this land home. In Philadelphia, the CHAHTA IMMI CULTURAL CENTER features exhibits, classes and special events promoting Choctaw language and culture. At Native American mound sites, like the WINTERVILLE MOUNDS near Greenville and others along the MISSISSIPPI MOUND TRAIL, visitors can experience these millennia-old earthworks and learn their role in the archeological history of the state.

SOUTH

Outside Natchez, visitors can explore the GRAND VILLAGE OF THE NATCHEZ Indians, a 128-acre park featuring three prehistoric Native American mounds. A nature trail also highlights the natural beauty of the area and the historical significance of the site, which was a main ceremonial center for the Natchez Indians between 1682 and 1730.

MISSISSIPPI MUSEUMS

NORTH

The MUSEUM OF THE MISSISSIPPI DELTA offers visitors an up-close look at the art and history of this remarkable region. With exhibits highlighting military and agricultural history, archeological artifacts and a hands-on natural science experience, this Greenwood museum tells the story of the Delta, its culture and the people who have lived there.

CENTRAL

The MUSEUM OF MISSISSIPPI HISTORY and the MISSISSIPPI CIVIL RIGHTS MUSEUM sit next to each other in Jackson, and together the TWO MISSISSIPPI MUSEUMS tell the rich history of Mississippi, in all its inspiring complexity. The Museum of Mississippi History begins with the indigenous peoples of the state and proceeds through the centuries to the history we live today. The Mississippi Civil Rights Museum explores the struggle for equal rights for African Americans that lasted from Emancipation through the struggles of the mid 20th century Civil Rights Movement. The Old Mississippi State Capitol in Jackson, home to the state government from 1839 to 1903, is now the OLD CAPITOL MUSEUM. Visit the building where momentous decisions of Mississippi's tumultuous 19th century were made, and stop by the MISSISSIPPI STATE HALL OF FAME, contained in the museum.

SOUTH

The MISSISSIPPI ARMED FORCES MUSEUM in Hattiesburg honors the sacrifices Mississippians have made since the earliest days of statehood. The nearby AFRICAN AMERICAN MILITARY MUSEUM, housed in a historic USO post, celebrates the contributions of Black Mississippians to the military history of the United States.

CIVIL WAR

Stretching along the vital transport artery of the Mississippi River, the state of Mississippi saw some of the most violent fighting of the Civil War. The wartime struggles became part of the Mississippi story forever, and history buffs have ample opportunities to learn more about the conflict.

NORTH

Visitors with an interest in American history will find significant Civil War sites throughout the state. In museums like the CORINTH CIVIL WAR INTERPRETIVE CENTER, visitors can learn the history of that conflict, and at memorials like the TUPELO NATIONAL BATTLEFIELD, visitors stand on the ground where events unfolded. The ULYSSES S. GRANT PRESIDENTIAL LIBRARY is located on the campus of Mississippi State University in Starkville.

Biloxi is also the embarkation point for excursions to SHIP ISLAND, a barrier island home to Civil War-era Fort Massachusetts.

CIVIL RIGHTS

Mississippi was at the very center of the civil rights struggles of the mid 20th century, and the state is full of places to learn about and reflect on the struggle for full rights for African Americans and its meaning today. Over two dozen of these sites, commemorating the people and places of the Civil Rights Movement, have been marked as historically significant sites on the Mississippi Freedom Trail (see page 53).

NORTH

The IDA B. WELLS-BARNETT MUSEUM in Holly Springs marks the birthplace and celebrates the career of the trailblazing journalist; her birthday is celebrated each year in mid-July. Holly Springs' RUST COLLEGE is the oldest historically black college and second-oldest private college in Mississippi: alumni include Ida B. Wells and Larry Anderson, MIT men's basketball head coach. The EMMETT TILL INTERPRETIVE CENTER in Sumner tells the story and honors the memory of Emmett Till, a teenager whose 1955 lynching galvanized the modern Civil Rights Movement. The FANNIE LOU HAMER MEMORIAL GARDEN in Ruleville offers a place to honor the legacy of the Mississippi-born voting rights and anti-segregation activist. The AMZIE MOORE HOUSE in Cleveland is where the veteran and leader of the local NAACP lived during his leadership of local civil rights efforts.

CENTRAL

During June 1966, Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. and thousands of fellow civil rights activists marched from Memphis to Jackson in the March Against Fear to protest continued racial injustice and recent attempted murder of activist James Meredith. They were welcomed and fed by congregants of the OAK GROVE AME CHURCH in Benton. The church is still an active congregation, and a marker commemorates the night the activists camped on the grounds before proceeding toward Jackson. Jackson's architecturally striking old GREYHOUND BUS STATION was a key destination for the Freedom Riders, during which citizens protested segregated transport and were arrested in numbers so large that it overwhelmed Jackson's legal system. The MEDGAR AND MYRLIE EVER'S HOME in Jackson was the home of the activist couple until Medgar's murder in the carport in 1963. His widow continued her work for civil rights causes, and today, the home is managed by the National Park Service.

SOUTH

One of Martin Luther King, Jr.'s last public appearances before his death was at ST. PAUL UNITED METHODIST CHURCH in Laurel, where he rallied support for the ongoing Poor People's March protesting economic injustices. People sat, stood, rode and marched for civil rights—and in Biloxi, they waded, protesting segregation at beaches. Today, this unusual but important protest is remembered as the BILOXI BEACH WADE-IN and is commemorated with a Freedom Trail marker.

HISTORIC CEMETERIES

NORTH

FRIENDSHIP CEMETERY in Columbus began in 1849 as a local Odd Fellows cemetery but saw the burial of many Civil War dead because of Columbus' role as a hospital center. After the war, the women of the town laid flowers on the graves of Confederate and Union soldiers, and this "grave decorating day" was an early example of the tradition that ultimately grew into Memorial Day. Beautiful ST. PETER'S CEMETERY in Oxford is best known for being the resting place of Nobel Prize-winning novelist William Faulkner; devotees sometimes leave liquor at the novelist's grave.

CENTRAL

The 116-acre VICKSBURG NATIONAL CEMETERY, located near the USS Cairo in the Vicksburg National Military Park, is the final resting place of 17,000 Civil War soldiers. In Jackson, the 22-acre GREENWOOD CEMETERY features peaceful natural beauty and monuments dating back to its establishment in 1823. At ROSE HILL CEMETERY in Meridian, visitors will find grave markers of city founders, prominent citizens, veterans of various wars and the festively decorated final resting place of Kelly Mitchell, a Romany clan Queen.

SOUTH

The beautiful NATCHEZ CITY CEMETERY, situated on a bluff over the Mississippi River since 1822, presents some of the most gorgeous and wistful grave markers in the entire South. Nearby NATCHEZ NATIONAL CEMETERY, established during the Civil War, still accepts interments of service members and their families. It is also home to the storied "Turning Angel" monument featured in Natchez novelist Greg Iles' book by the same name. Over 300 years old, the OLD BILOXI CEMETERY reflects the ties between Biloxi and nearby New Orleans, with above-ground barrel vaults marking many of the graves.

Follow Our Trails

WANDERERS ARE ALWAYS WELCOME IN MISSISSIPPI, BUT SOMETIMES WE ALL NEED A PATH TO FOLLOW. OUR TRAILS AREN'T JUST FOOTPATHS THROUGH THE VERDANT LANDSCAPES FOUND THROUGHOUT THE MAGNOLIA STATE. OUR OFFICIAL CULTURAL TRAILS FOLLOW THE ARTISTIC JOURNEYS OUR FOREFATHERS TOOK TO EXPRESS THEIR JOY AND THEIR STRUGGLES, AND THEIR OWN PATHS TO UNDERSTANDING THEMSELVES, THEIR HOME AND THE WORLD.

We don't call our state the Birthplace of America's Music for nothing. Beginning in 2006, the Mississippi Blues Trail and the Mississippi Country Music Trail put that motto into motion, creating a network of hundreds of historical markers that together trace American popular music—rock, soul, R&B, hip-hop and Americana—back to their roots in Mississippi. Visitors from around the world flock to Mississippi to experience the places and people iconic musicians like Robert Johnson, B.B. King and Elvis Presley knew and reflected in their music.

Since then, we've added the Mississippi Freedom Trail, where you can trace the footsteps of courageous men and women who fought for equal rights. There's also the Mississippi Writers Trail to draw visitors deeper into the literary worlds of William Faulkner, Richard Wright and Eudora Welty, as well as other Pulitzer Prize and National Book Award winners and best-selling novelists. If you want to go back further into history, the Mississippi Mound Trail will put you on the path to learning how indigenous groups lived.

Our trails are self guided, and there are no formal entries or exits. You can dip into a trail at your leisure or visit them in groups based on location, theme or whatever fits your wanderings.

We may be known for the bounty of crops grown in the fertile Delta region and fresh Gulf seafood, but our culture, as you'll soon discover, is our greatest export.

MISSISSIPPI MOUND TRAIL

Rising high above the Delta flatlands all along the length of our river border, more than 30 significant mound sites on the Mississippi Mound Trail offer a peek back through history. For millennia before European settlers arrived, Native American tribes constructed mounds throughout the Mississippi River Valley. These sites marked locations of religious, social and political significance, and some served as the earthen foundation for the homes of respected elders.

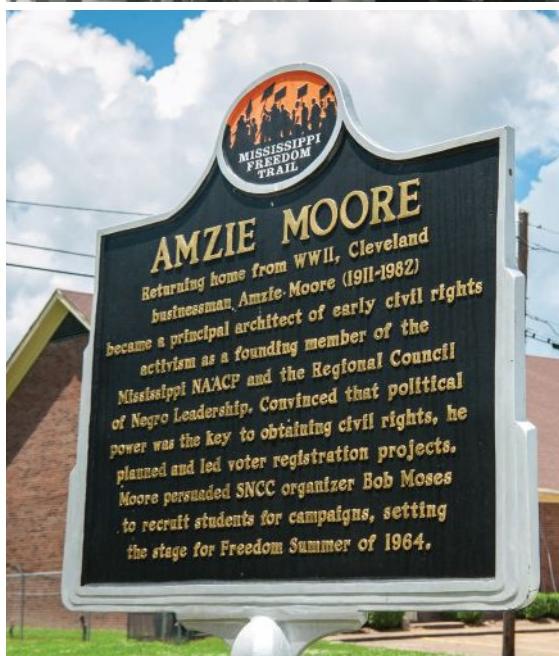

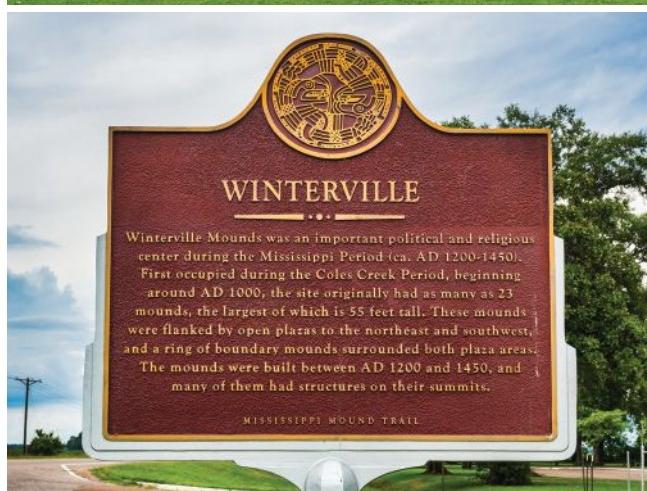

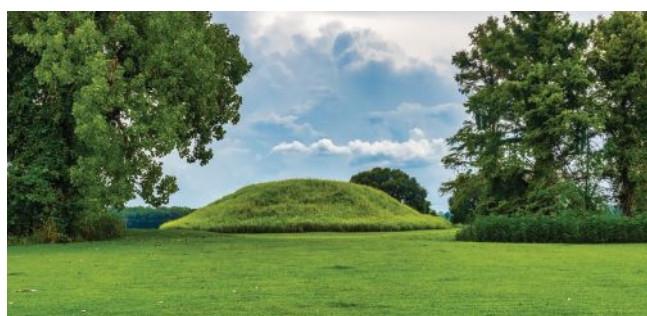

Within the borders of Mississippi as we know it today, indigenous peoples built mounds throughout the Plaquemine Mississippian period, or from 1200 to 1650 AD, although archaeological digs have revealed evidence of settlements from the Coles Creek period, which began in 650 AD, at some mound sites. Excavations of mounds beginning in the 20th century have revealed burial sites and the remains of domestic habitations, such as pottery and remnants of living quarters.

Just North of Greenville, the Winterville mounds are the largest in the state, with a centerpiece rectangular platform measuring 55 feet high. At one time, the site included 20 mounds, many of which supported architecture—and in some cases, structures that were burned and rebuilt repeatedly over time. The Winterville mounds are recognized as a National Historic Landmark.

The sight of a grand Colonial revival mansion perched high above the flat Delta is certainly jarring after driving through miles and miles of farmland. At Mont Helena, located near Rolling Fork in the middle of a field, is one of the more mysterious mounds in the state. Only four artifacts have been recovered from the site, and some assume it was used as a ceremonial mound. The current height of 26 feet is at least 10 feet lower than its original height; that much was removed before the home was built in 1896. The home is now open for tours.

As the first permanent European settlement in the Mississippi River Valley, we know quite a bit more about the mounds at Grand Village of the Natchez Indians. That's because when a French explorer first mapped the site in 1723, four of the six mounds were still in use. Grand Village was the center of the Natchez chiefdom and home to leaders including Great Sun and Tattooed Serpent. One of three remaining mounds, identified on French maps as the home of Great Sun, was confirmed by archaeologists following excavations in the 1960s. Today, visitors can tour a replica of a Natchez native dwelling and view artifacts retrieved from archaeological digs at the onsite museum.

For more information on the Mississippi Mound Trail, visit trails.mdah.ms.gov or scan the QR code.

MISSISSIPPI FREEDOM TRAIL

In the small town of Money, Mississippi, a trail marker sits outside of a rundown grocery store in remembrance of Emmett Till, a 14-year-old murdered for allegedly whistling at a white woman. This event is often said to be the spark that galvanized the Civil Rights Movement.

Since then, courageous efforts of countless individuals through tumultuous times have paved the way for justice and equality. Through stops on the Mississippi Freedom Trail, currently at 30 markers spanning the entire state, visitors can learn about heroic stands like the Jackson Municipal Library Sit-In, when nine African Americans were arrested for using a whites-only library, and the Biloxi Beach Wade-In, where non-violent black demonstrators were attacked by a white mob.

On the campus of the University of Mississippi in Oxford, a marker commemorates James Meredith's integration of the school in 1962. When state leaders ignored a federal order to desegregate, President John F. Kennedy mobilized the U.S. Army and federalized the National Guard to protect Meredith from rioting segregationists. Agents from the U.S. Department of Justice escorted him through a mass of opponents to the Lyceum, where he completed his registration and was admitted.

Markers for Amzie Moore in Cleveland, Fannie Lou Hamer in Ruleville and Rev. George Lee in Belzoni honor those who put their lives at risk to advance voting rights for African Americans in the state. In Itta Bena, 45 voting rights pioneers were tear gassed and arrested at Hopewell Missionary Baptist Church for the alleged crime of "breach of peace," and in the Olde Towne district of Clinton, a marker tells the story of the Clinton Massacre of 1875, where a political rally and debate between black Republicans and white Democrats turned violent and led to the deaths of 50 or more black citizens. A marker outside the Woolworth Chapel on the Tougaloo College campus in Jackson commemorates the actions of students during the Civil Rights Movement.

The Mississippi Freedom Trail is an ongoing project with markers continuously added. For more information and complete list of trail markers, scan the QR code.

MISSISSIPPI BLUES TRAIL

Having the blues doesn't have to be a bummer. As Jimmy "Duck" Holmes, owner of the Blue Front Cafe juke joint in Bentonia has said, "it doesn't matter if a blues song is about something good or bad—the more you sing, the better you feel." The Mississippi Blues Trail celebrates the enormous achievements of blues musicians and traces the evolution of the genre through more than 200 markers posted across the state, including 21 located in other states or countries.

Traveling south into the Delta, the Highway 61 Blues marker at the Gateway to the Blues Museum in Tunica sets the tone for your blues road trip with a lesson on the importance of the "blues highway" in spreading the music through the Delta and up to Memphis, St. Louis and Chicago. After checking out markers for Big Jack Johnson, Ike Turner and others in Clarksdale, tour the Delta Blues Museum to see the cabin Muddy Waters lived in while working at Stovall Plantation. Then, head south to Dockery Plantation and learn why scholars believe this could be the birthplace of the blues.

But the blues didn't just happen in the Delta. You'll find historical markers for major blues figures across Mississippi, like Howlin' Wolf in West Point, Charley Patton's Birthplace in Bolton and Robert Johnson's Birthplace in Hazlehurst. The newest marker on the Blues Trail, located on Farish Street in Jackson, celebrates R&B and soul singer Dorothy Moore, who enjoyed success with the smash hit "Misty Blue." At 100 Men Hall in Bay St. Louis, you can visit the century-old stop on the Chitlin' Circuit—the loose network of juke joints and venues across the South where black musicians performed blues, soul and R&B—which hosted Etta James, Irma Thomas and James Brown.

The Mississippi Blues Trail is an ongoing project with markers continuously added. For more information and complete list of trail markers, scan the QR code.

MISSISSIPPI COUNTRY MUSIC TRAIL

The man known worldwide as the King of Rock 'n' Roll is also the only person to have markers on both the Mississippi Blues Trail and Country Music Trail. The Elvis Country Music Trail marker in Tupelo focuses on how the music of his childhood influenced his early Sun Records singles, and how elements of country music remained in his signature style throughout his life. Nearby in Tremont, the Tammy Wynette marker honors the Country Music Hall of Famer who sang the smash hits "Stand By Your Man" and "D-I-V-O-R-C-E."

The first time Johnny Cash played in Starkville, he and his band hung out after the concert and played songs late into the night at a fraternity house. The second time, though, ended with Cash arrested while picking flowers at 2 a.m. He wrote the song "Starkville City Jail" about the night he spent in lockup and featured it on the live album Johnny Cash At San Quentin. In 2021, former Cash band member and son-in-law Marty Stuart paid tribute to his friend by playing the song on one of Cash's guitars at the unveiling ceremony.

As one of the first female artists to write and perform her own music, Bobbie Gentry was a trailblazer in the male-dominated music industry. But she's remembered for her music—especially her No. 1 hit "Ode to Billie Joe," a sultry country song about the mysterious death of fictional character Billie Joe McAllister, who jumped off the Tallahatchie Bridge. The Bobbie Gentry marker is located in Greenwood near the river she made famous.

Charley Pride was a professional baseball player who dabbled in singing when a local radio DJ got him an audition with Nashville tastemakers who were traveling through Helena, Montana, where he lived at the time. While this meeting started Pride on a new career, it took a while to land a recording contract; as Danica Hart of Mississippi country trio Chapel Hart has said, "country music didn't look like him." But that didn't matter. He not only became the first African American country star and member of The Grand Ole Opry, but he also left behind a legacy of 28 No. 1 hit songs when he passed away in 2020. His marker is located in Sledge where he grew up.

As country stars go, they don't get bigger than the "Mississippi Girl" herself, Faith Hill. You'll find her marker in the town of Star—and yes, it was already named that before she sold more than 30 million albums worldwide. Down in Biloxi, Chris LeDoux's marker illuminates his life as a professional rodeo rider who began singing country songs, later parlaying his musical gift into a second career. In 2005, he was named to the ProRodeo Hall of Fame and awarded the Academy of Country Music's Pioneer Award.

The Mississippi Country Music Trail is an ongoing project with markers continuously added. For more information and complete list of trail markers, scan the QR code.

MISSISSIPPI WRITERS TRAIL

A state with such a deep cultural history is sure to produce generations of creative talent who leave their mark across the arts. Mississippi's literary legacy is full of such works, authored by titans like William Faulkner, Richard Ford and Margaret Walker, as well as relative newcomers like Jesmyn Ward and Natasha Trethewey. The Mississippi Writers Trail currently honors 13 revered authors with historical markers.

Fittingly, the Tennessee Williams marker is located in Clarksdale, where the playwright spent his early childhood. Williams worked Delta memories such as Moon Lake, which appears in works like "A Streetcar Named Desire" and "The Glass Menagerie," into many of his plays. Novelist, photographer and short story writer Eudora Welty's marker is located at the Jackson home where she lived and wrote for most of her life. The home is listed on the National Register of Historic Places and is open for tours.

Welty's friend Willie Morris, who worked his way up from the Yazoo City boyhood he wrote about in North Toward Home and My Dog Skip to become the youngest editor of Harper's Magazine, is celebrated with a marker in the town he made famous. Through his writing, editing and enormous personality, he served as an ambassador for Mississippi and the South to the rest of the country and the world.

The Mississippi Writers Trail is an ongoing project with markers continuously added. For more information and complete list of trail markers, scan the QR code.

Mississippi's National Heritage Areas

HISTORY, CULTURE AND NATURE COME TOGETHER IN THE STATE'S NATIONALLY SIGNIFICANT LANDSCAPES

Congress has designated 55 regions across the United States as National Heritage Areas. Once called a "new kind of national park" by President Ronald Reagan, these "lived-in landscapes" are areas that possess a natural, cultural and historical richness that make particularly strong contributions to the country's heritage. Mississippi's three National Heritage Areas provide visitors with a chance to see how history and culture continue to shape the country's destiny.

MISSISSIPPI HILLS NATIONAL HERITAGE AREA

In the northern region of the state, the southwestern most foothills of the Appalachians form the Mississippi Hills National Heritage Area. Crossed by the ancient Natchez Trace trade route, the Mississippi hills were largely Chickasaw territory before the wealth of the local farmland and forests drew American settlers. The area saw ferocious Civil War battles in Iuka and Corinth, leading in turn to the establishment of the Corinth Contraband Camp to accommodate recently freed people. Sons and daughters of the area would later become prominent leaders in 20th-century American culture: writers William Faulkner and Tennessee Williams came from here, as did Tammy Wynette, blues great Howlin' Wolf and perhaps most famously, Tupelo-born Elvis Presley. Civil rights warriors including journalist Ida B. Wells and James Meredith, the first African American student at the University of Mississippi, contributed greatly to the struggle for equality in Mississippi and throughout the United States.

MISSISSIPPI DELTA NATIONAL HERITAGE AREA

Fertile soil and proximity to the great Mississippi River have drawn people to the Mississippi Delta, spanning the North and Central regions of the state, since the first Americans arrived and built the earthen mounds that still stand in the Delta today. US Highway 61, the Blues Highway, crosses the Mississippi Delta National Heritage Area—intersecting US Highway 49 in Clarksdale at the notorious Devil's Crossroads, where Robert Johnson reportedly sold his soul to become a great bluesman. The Delta's farms and rivers provide the ingredients for the area's increasingly famous food scene, where local traditions and global influences transform the region's natural riches into dishes that draw diners from across the nation. A particular attraction is the area's tamales—stories vary as to how they originated, and returning Mexican War veterans, Depression-era migrant laborers and Native Americans are all sometimes credited. Spicier and saucier than those enjoyed elsewhere, they're the perfect roadside fuel for a road trip exploring this attraction-packed part of the state.

MISSISSIPPI GULF COAST NATIONAL HERITAGE AREA

The three Mississippi counties that adjoin the Gulf coast, along with three more just inland, make up the Mississippi Gulf Coast National Heritage Area. This historic, innovative, natural and flavorful region is where Europeans first encountered the land that would become Mississippi. Forts, lighthouses and historic cemeteries testify to the area's storied past. The area's natural beauty has inspired countless artists, including the world-renowned artists Walter Anderson and George Ohr, and serves as the backdrop for scientists working on our continued exploration of outer space. The coastal waters, beaches, bayous and swamps teem with abundant plant and animal life—and the Pascagoula River is the largest undammed river in the lower 48 states. These fertile waterways have also led to the Mississippi Gulf Coast becoming famous for its seafood, with catfish, crawfish, drum, shrimp and oysters filling plates across the region.

Mississippi's Downtowns

Mississippi's 48 Main Street communities are the heart of our state. These are the communities that inspired Walter Anderson, Eudora Welty, and B.B. King. From the Delta blues to Cruisin' the Coast, historic walking trails to Tupelo honey, downtowns across the state put on a show with unique shopping, local flavor, and scenic districts.

Take a road trip through the crooked letter state and get a taste of the hospitality we're known for.

The advertisement features a map of Mississippi as the background. In the upper left, there's a cluster of colorful balloons (red, yellow, blue, pink) and a large starburst graphic containing the text "CELEBRATE BIRTHDAYS WITH US!". The main title "ALL ROADS LEAD TO FUN!" is at the top in large, stylized letters. Below it, a section titled "FAMILY FUN!" describes Premier Lanes as the largest family entertainment center in North MS, offering bowling, SuperTouch LCD scoring, themed interactive games, and YouToons! It also mentions the Action Alley Arcade, Reward players via the Prize Palace, and the Rowan Oak Cafe. A "Specials" section encourages asking about daily specials. To the right, a large blue sign for "Premier LANES ENTERTAINMENT CENTER" is displayed, stating "THE AREA'S LARGEST ENTERTAINMENT CENTER OXFORD, MS". Below the sign, directional road signs point to various facilities: BOWLING, LASER MAZE, CAFE, ACTION ALLEY ARCADE, and PARTIES & EVENTS. The sign also includes the word "Macon" above "Oxford". At the bottom, there are sections for movie theaters: DESOTO CINEMA GRILL (Southaven, MS), OLIVE BRANCH CINEMA GRILL (Olive Branch, MS), GRANDVIEW CINEMA & IMAX (Madison, MS), RENAISSANCE CINEMA GRILL (Ridgeland, MS), TUPELO COMMONS CINEMA GRILL (Tupelo, MS), OXFORD COMMONS CINEMA GRILL (Oxford, MS), OXFORD STUDIO CINEMA (Oxford, MS), CORINTH CINEMA (Corinth, MS), and COLUMBUS CINEMA (Columbus, MS). Each cinema entry includes a "RESERVED LUXURY RECLINER SEATING" line. The bottom left shows the "Malco MARQUEE REWARDS" logo with the slogan "EARN. REDEEM. REPEAT." and "RELAX & RECLINE" with "LUXURY RESERVED RECLINER SEATING". The bottom right features "I LOVE TUESDAYS" with "CHECK OUT MALCO'S TUESDAY TICKET PRICES!" and "Available Per A Limited Time Only At Participating Locations". There's also a small image of a Malco popcorn bucket.
